

1- What is the final title of your project?

- The Foodie (feel free to change the name yall)

2- What problem is this project trying to solve?

- Many people have tight schedules, and don't have the time to cook a meal for themselves. This project enables people to easily order food from their phone, and have it delivered to their door in a timely manner.

3- Who are your project's key stakeholders (including categories/subcategories of potential users/customers)?

Anyone who doesn't have time to go prepare a meal and needs something that's quick and easy. This can include families or everyday people to corporations looking to cater for meetings. Anyone can use our app to order and get it delivered.

4- What is this project's scope (boundaries, what is in, what is out)?

- We need a website as well as advertisements in order to promote our Foodie app
- Show restaurants in the nearby area of the customer (map feature)
- Show who's available to deliver
- Show how long it will take to deliver
- When companies offer their services and provide the food, we should have them give not only their hours of operation but also any foreseeable limitations and problems that they think will happen.
- In order to obtain the most amount of revenue, we should have no limit to hours of operation of the app, however companies have the ability to limit the hours that their companies provide their food and services, that way we do not lose shareholders, as well as customers, and clients.
